Tyler focuses his practice on the representation of financial institutions, insurance companies, banks, and other institutional investors with domestic and cross-border private placements of debt and equity securities in secured and unsecured financings. He also regularly represents middle-market lenders in private equity-sponsored acquisition financings and related debt transactions. Tyler has wide-ranging industry experience, including REITs, electric cooperatives, public utilities, manufacturing, transportation, and higher education.

Previous Work

Before joining ArentFox Schiff, Tyler was an associate in the Corporate Group of a prominent New York City law firm. He represented financial institutions, institutional investors, and public companies in structuring and negotiating a broad range of finance and corporate matters, including asset-based loans, securitizations, institutional investments in FinTech platforms, and private middle-market mergers and acquisitions.
