Megan advises foreign and domestic clients on regulatory matters related to international business transactions. Specifically, Megan counsels clients on regulatory issues related to international trade, including US export controls, trade sanctions, antiboycott provisions, and registration and reporting under the Foreign Agents Registration Act (FARA).

Megan regularly works with clients on issues related to US export controls administered by the Department of State, Directorate of Defense Trade Controls, and the Department of Commerce, Bureau of Industry and Security. She's experienced in conducting due diligence reviews and compliance audits, drafting comprehensive compliance programs, drafting license and agreement applications, preparing commodity jurisdiction and classification requests, preparing voluntary disclosures, responding to government requests for information and administrative subpoenas, and assisting in day-to-day compliance with the International Traffic in Arms Regulations (ITAR) and Export Administration Regulations (EAR).

In addition, Megan advises clients on issues related to economic sanctions administered by the Department of the Treasury, Office of Foreign Assets Control (OFAC), including sanctions programs related to countries (e.g., Iran, Russia, Syria, and Cuba) and against individuals and entities. She advises clients on US primary and secondary sanctions jurisdiction and assists companies with conducting risk assessments, reviewing and evaluating contractual obligations, developing appropriate compliance programs and processes, preparing license applications, conducting compliance audits and investigations, drafting voluntary disclosures, and responding to administrative subpoenas. Megan also counsels clients on compliance with the antiboycott provisions administered by the Department of Commerce and the Department of the Treasury, as well as on companies' and individuals' registration and reporting obligations under FARA.
